

Abstract

The work will be considered a biography of Heinrich Schliemann from the moment of his first arrival in St.Petersburg on 11 February 1846 and to complete rupture of all relations (family, commercial, social) with the Russian Empire 30 June 1869. The 23-year study period of time includes long periods of absence of Heinrich Schliemann in Russia and his stay in other countries for commercial or travel. But the main thing remains the fact that almost 20 years Heinrich Schliemann were the citizen of the Russian Empire, and that this part of his biography remains almost unknown and little-known in the scientific community of Europe and even Russia.

In the course of work will be drawn up the portrait of Heinrich Schliemann before he will radically change the scope of his interests and devote himself to archaeological investigations and the search of Homeric Troy.
