

This diploma paper of work is divided into a theoretical and empirical part. In the theoretical part of the work, I directed my attention at the problem of alcohol consumption in our society, the influence of alcohol consumption on the personality, mental and psychological qualities of man, the influence of alcohol on people from sociological, psychological of view.

The empirical part of the work contains an analysis of my own research project which was done using a method of questionnaire analysis and the complex study of the fines. On the basis of the facts found, sample of youths aged . The results of the research are summarised and evaluated.