

The aim of this thesis is to continue with the survey of occupational satisfaction done in the Faculty Hospital in Motol and to map subjective satisfaction of nurses as far as the selected aspects related to professional performance are concerned. The theoretical part deals with the satisfaction with certain areas of people`s lives. The research part heads towards the goal of this thesis by verifying certain assumptions in faculty hospitals in the Czech Republic and in a hospital in Great Britain.