

My master thesis treats of problems of quality of life of people, whose sight has been broken, and they have been gradually losing it during their life. Theoretical part is focused on the quality of life, sight sense for man, sight patho-physiology, reaction to losing sight, sight therapy possibilities and social support for people with sight problems. Research part evaluates informants' statements in a horizontal and vertical way. These statements were gained in three rounds interviews after three months parts. Research part follows the process of taking care of informants with gradual losing sight.
