

Abstract

This bachelor thesis deals with the position of the Czechoslovak National Socialist Party in the exile Council of Free Czechoslovakia. The introduction presents the post-war development of ČSNS. Emphasis is placed on events describing the position of ČSNS in the the post war political system until the Czechoslovak coup d'état and emigration. The second part of this thesis describes the beginnings and renewal of the CSNS in exile and other political parties in exile, associated with the Council of Free Czechoslovakia. The third and main part of this thesis describes the Council of Free Czechoslovakia. The council is divided into individual subchapters. These subchapters describe the history, organizational structure, crisis and policy of the Council. The purpose of these subchapters is to point out the work of ČSNS in individual parts of the Council and participation in the creation of its policy. The final chapter compares the Czechoslovak National Committee and the Council of Free Czechoslovakia in order to point out their differences and substantiate them.
