

Summary

In my bachelor thesis I focus on the issue of children with ADHD syndrome at elementary school. I describe here the causes of this syndrome, its basic symptoms, the manifestations and also the personality of the child.

I deal primarily with the basic education methods used at elementary school. I also focus on problems in establishing friendship, relationships between these children and teachers. I also wondered what the long-term prognosis of this syndrome is.

To find out how important ADHD is for school children, I used a few case studies of ADHD children in school age, as well as interviews with pedagogue assistants, a child with this disorder, and a parent.
