

Abstract

The aim of the thesis is a reflection of the phenomenon military service in the Czechoslovak People's Army in the seventies of the twentieth century in the men's collective memory who fulfilled military service in these times. The research was based on a narrative analysis data which have been obtained during oral history interviews with contemporary witnesses. Then, the data were compared with written historical sources. The thesis is focused on a soldier's everyday routine in the military service. The empirical part is focused on the reflection of the military service from the view of narrators.