

The topic of his thesis "Acute intoxication addictive substances in terms of treatment and prevention, "I chose because of my long-time interest in emergency medicine, the phenomenon of chemical substances on the human body and psychological, and topical drug problems both in terms of psychological, and medical. I believe that this work may also play a preventive role, unless it gets to the target group of young people who yearn for the experiment. Dissemination in electronic form, which is also the work is produced and submissions, has great potential intervention target reader. I'll be glad when In my work the reader will find interesting and useful information.
