

SUMMARY

This thesis deals with the topic of wastewater disposal in rest areas which are not connected to public sewerage, using a questionnaire in effort to find out the real situation of waste water, where property owners and appropriate authorities were asked. These answers could then be compared and the problem could be universally described. Questions were targeted at ways of wastewater management, system of export control, draining of the wastewater into the surroundings and influence of the quality of the drinking water in wells. This thesis aims to problem of wastewater disposal in recreational areas in the Czech Republic, that are not connected to public sewerage. Information were collected through questionnaires given to property owners and municipal authorities. Answers were compared and the situation was described. Questions were mainly targeted to wastewater management, control system, wastewater drainage to surroundings and effect of this system to drinking water quality in wells.

