

Diploma thesis „Information education of adults“ deals with condition of human organism, when the effect of insulin on cells and liver is decreased. We can influence this status with exercise therapy, especially with endurance training combined with strenhgt training