

This thesis is about the benefit of cholesterol lowering in prevention of cardiovascular disease, because I think that this very issue is one of the most dynamic parts of preventive medicine and preventive cardiology at all. The work also tries to explain the risk factors, treatment, importance of lowering cholesterol and also explain the basic mechanisms of lipid metabolism and their individual components.