

The aim of this thesis is to describe secondary nursing school students' relation towards their profession of a nursing assistant as well as the development of their relation in the course of studies. The theory part of the thesis determines the meaning of the term relation, defines the essential factors which influence the relation towards this work, specifies the adolescent period and characterises the professional development of a person. The integral part of the thesis is also the graduate profile of this very branch. In the research part we analyzed the change in the relation towards medical profession during the studies at secondary nursing school. We especially took our attention to the factors which are particular for the change of this very relation towards the profession of a worker in medicine.