

Abstract

The diploma thesis Differences in the promotion of gender equality in the politics of the Ano 2011 party and the CDU / CSU union deals with a comparative analysis of two political parties, the Czech party Ano 2011 and the German Union CDU / CSU, and their approach to gender equality. Both ruling parties since 2018 influence establishing greater gender equality in society than is currently the case. That's why I chose to answer the questions for the research How do both political parties view gender equality? How do they enforce it in their policy? And are they trying to set greater gender equality in their policies in society, or are they just using it as a form to win the votes of more voters? I tried to find the answers using the method content analysis of political, government and election programs, and other party documents.