

The aim of this dissertation is to introduce the program supported employment. This service is supposed to help people with learning difficulties becoming usefull to the open job. It follows the describing and explaining how this supported employment works, for whom is defined, what are it's goals and principles. The next is acquainted with the specific work of the agency Rytmus for supported employment.