Course of defence: The defence was opened by the committee, asking the student to present the dissertation. The student elaborated on the research aims, research design and results results in a detailed way. The committee asked the student to react to the reviews, highlighting that there were almost no critical comments, and asking the student to consider what could have been done better from his own perspective. The student reacted, drawing attention to the possibility of strengthening his dissertation by including a comparative perspective. The committee asked the student to define eco-fascism in a few words, explaining the very key attributes of this term, and the student discussed the nuances of the term. The committee also inquired into the organisation and ideology of eco-fascist groups, and the student addressed this comment too. Being satisfied with the student's performance, the committee concluded the defence.
