

My bachelor's dissertation is mainly focused on mapping the possibilities of implementing activities in the field of employment support for handicapped people in the small region of Opočensko, which is situated in the Královéhradecký region. I analyze current needs of handicapped people expressed through other social and educational service providers and also the state of the local social service market. I map the state of community and strategic planning of the towns Dobruška, Nové Město nad Metují, Opočno and the Královéhradecký region. The summary of its present progress and outputs concerning mainly the state and planned development of social services is further used for more specific definition of the activity of Dílny Tvořivosti nonprofit organization branch in the small region and for framing a draft of a proposed project directly addressing the local situation. In this way I have reached, as I firmly believe, a qualified decision that Dílny tvořivosti can offer its present experience in the field of supporting integration of people threatened with social exclusion and contribute to the solution of current issues of the region in this field. But for setting up a branch of the organization in the small region and providing its services it is needed to obtain stable support of the local government as well as of the self-government authorities. Suitable conditions for activities of a non-government nonprofit organization providing social services can be found in Nové Město nad Metují and that is why I propose to place the headquarters of the organization in this town. But the actual realization of the project depends mainly on financial support from the Královehradecký region.
