

Abstract

The diploma thesis with the title 'The Transformation of Czech television journalism in a broadcast Interview ČT24' deals with the analysis of the broadcast Interview ČT 24 from the beginning of the show in 2006 until 2021. In the theoretical part, text will define the basic differences between news and journalism. Internet journalism, as another important player in the media field, is further analyzed in theory. The diploma thesis will also present the specifics of a television journalistic interview, history of television journalism and try to put the show into the context of television broadcasting. The core of the work will be a qualitative analysis of formal and content changes with emphasis on moderation, visual and technical change and selection of individual guests and topics. From 2006 to the present, many presenters moderated this broadcasting. The thesis will be divided into several stages according to the presenter. Each of the stages will be subject to the analysis. The aim is to analyze the transformation of journalistic broadcasting of the show. The main research question is how the program Interview ČT24 has changed from its inception to the present in terms of formal, contentual and audiovisual changes using the available online archive of the show and interviews with employees from Czech television.