

The thesis examines how to use trading strategies and indicators from stock markets, that are well-known and used for years, to the new and dynamically growing crypto markets. The goal of the thesis is to design and implement a framework for testing indicators. Test each indicator on historical data of cryptocurrencies. Evaluate the results and suggest a trading strategy to maximize profit. Use the strategy to create a trading bot on a crypto exchange.