Průběh obhajoby: The defence started with the introduction of the chairman during which he introduced the committee and the reviewers. Afterwards, the supervisor presented the work of the student, he summarised his course of the studies, publication activity, etc. The student started his presentation by introducing the research framework that focusses on the relations between Russia and Ukraine. He then explained the main concept of delegation related to the case studied. Furthermore, he presented the research questions and the arguments on which they are based. Finally, he summarised the contributions of the research to the field.

The chairman then asked the reviewers to read their comments. First, Prof. Mareš summarised the review and stated that the current form of the dissertation includes all his previous comments from the small defence. Therefore, he is positive about the dissertation and suggests that it should be defended. Second, the chairman read the comments of the second reviewer. The second review is also generally positive. Dr. Svoboda also suggested that the thesis be defended.

Subsequently, the student responded to the comments of the reviewers. Then the chairman opened the floor for further questions from the audience. Dr. Parízek asked a question about the concept of self-defeating patronage. The student answered the question.

Finally, the committee deliberated on the student's grade.
