

ABSTRACT IN ENGLISH LANGUAGE

TÉMA PRÁCE: Domestic violence and its prevention

In my diploma thesis, I deal with the topic of domestic violence and its prevention, which is a societal problem across all cultures. It is specific in that this negative phenomenon occurs in private, in a place that should be a place of safety and love, among people who are emotionally attached to each other. The aim of the presented work, systematically organized into 8 chapters, is to provide the reader with a complete set of information on the issue of domestic violence and to introduce him to the methods of protection provided by the Czech legal system.

The introductory chapter is devoted to the general historical development of domestic violence, the theoretical definition of the concept of domestic violence, which has not yet been legally defined, it also presents the defining features that define domestic violence, its forms, summarizes the individual myths and prejudices of society.

In the second chapter, the work is focused on individual subjects, i.e. the person of the perpetrator and the victim.

Subsequently, a brief development of legislation in the field of protection against domestic violence is outlined.

The fifth, sixth and seventh chapters are devoted to legal protection at the national level, namely civil law, civil law and criminal law.

The sixth chapter enumerates the rights to help victims of crimes.

In the seventh and eighth, the situation in the case of the coronavirus and prevention is outlined.