

Abstract

The subject of the thesis is online social counseling with a focus on its possibilities and limits. The work deals with the forms of online social counseling that are provided in the Czech Republic, and with the help of qualitative semi-structured interviews with social workers who have experience in providing some of the forms of online counseling, it is examining its possibilities and limits.

Key words

Social Counseling, Direct Work, Internet, Online