

Abstract

This bachelor thesis explores the development of the urban toponymic system in Český Krumlov. The thesis contains a corpus of urbanonyms of the city, which is analysed from several points of view: semantic motivation, the form of names and the relation between the German and Czech language. The thesis also deals with the phenomenon of urbanonymic subsystems. Particular names are studied in their development from the beginning of the twentieth century up to the present.