

Abstract

This bachelor thesis deals with the lexical and semantic field of the word head (cabeza/hlava) in Spanish and Czech. It studies in detail the compound words and derivatives associated with head. By means of corpus analyses, it compares the meanings and frequencies of these words between the two languages, and it discovers the correspondence between Spanish and Czech in semantic fields of words associated with head.