

Abstract

The bachelor's thesis aims to explore the awareness of primary school teachers regarding domestic violence, educational programs available for prevention, and their knowledge about domestic violence. The theoretical part of the thesis delves into defining the fundamental concepts related to this issue. It discusses key terminologies such as domestic violence, children as victims of domestic violence, the abused child syndrome, the protocols for teachers when suspecting domestic violence in a child, as well as prevention and teachers' awareness of domestic violence. The practical part of the thesis focuses on conducting qualitative research using interviews as the primary method.
