

The Abstract

The presented thesis deals with the international terrorism of the extreme right. Based on the analysis of specialist texts and ideological handbooks of the extreme right, the ability of global communication of extreme right terrorist groups is examined. The thesis presents the historical context and basic theoretical concepts associated with contemporary far-right terrorism. Using the example of the organization Atomwaffen Division, the thesis analyzes the development and current trends of far-right terrorism.

Key words: Far-right terrorism, radicalization, political terrorism, neo-nazism, global terrorism