

Abstract

This bachelor's thesis is concerned with personality and beliefs of Ferdinand Čatloš, slovak general in era of so called Slovak state. Ferdinand Čatloš is contradictory personality of modern Slovak history. He was chosen because his memoirs are often taken over uncritically and wrong. Parts of this thesis include biografical study of Ferdinand Čatloš, analysis of clerical fascism as a historical phenomenon, analysis of Čatloš's memoirs and a comparison of Ferdinand Čatloš and Jozef Tiso.