

The topic of his thesis information about tobacco , tobacco products , water dýmkách ; methods of their use and possibilities of reducing their use of I chosen on the basis of its several years of continuing interest in the issue drugs and their effects on the human organism . Already in the third year Master's degree 3 University Department 'm under an optional course Neurobiology - therapy and prevention of drug addiction wrote a seminar paper LSD and ecstasy and use in therapy.

Addictive substances, whether we want to admit it or not , are part of everyday life around us. And so I think that it is necessary before this social problem , which certainly addictive substances are , do not close your eyes and not to look that actually nothing.

This is particularly true in the field of socially positively accepted drugs such as alcohol or nicotine , which is above the steaming drunk teenagers today Unfortunately, almost no one suspends .