

The final exams of Preventive Medicine in the Master General Medicine is the development and presentation of the thesis. I chose the topic of the thesis "A review of literature attempts to prevent autoimmune disease" in the field of autoimmunity, which is interesting and not entirely probádaným phenomenon. In this work, I tried to focus on the interesting findings from the search the field of autoimmunity. Closer I worked rheumatoid arthritis and possible secondary preventive and therapeutic approaches for this disease, because it is the most common autoimmune diseases.