

Summary

In this work, I analyzed the legislative changes associated with the integration of the NBD and their practical impact in connection with the geopolitical situation. I identified the differences in the approach to individual groups of refugees, as well as how these contradictions are perceived by specific minors, respectively current and former clients Facilities for children - foreigners. In my work, I used research, analysis and comparison of documents, direct observation, my own pedagogical practice, case study and semi-structured interview. The result of this work proposes possible changes to the systemic approach to the integration of unaccompanied minors in the Czech Republic.