

Abstrakt v angličtině

The diploma thesis describes the problems in the Jiřice prison. The aim of this thesis is to introduce the readers to the issue of addictive substances in the prison and to introduce them to the issue of addictive substances in Jiřice prison. The first part of the thesis is devoted, with the use of relevant literature, to the description of the prison service of the Czech Republic, where the problems of the prison service, the profiling of prisons, the staffing of prisons, the legislation related to drug issues and the prison system are characterized. Furthermore, this part of the thesis describes the risks of substance consumption in the prisons, risk behaviour associated with substance consumption, what substances are used in prisons and the way of penetration of substances. In addition, the thesis includes a description of substance use prevention and addiction services provided in prison. The second part of the thesis deals with substance use issues in Jiřice Prison. Using the method of secondary data analysis and comparison, the thesis will examine how the substance abuse issues in Jiřice Prison have changed over the last five years. Firstly, each year is described separately and then it is compared how this issues has changed in the last five years. Specifically, the thesis deals with a description of the number of inmates who were assigned to drug counseling and their use of addictive substances. In addition, the number of inmates who have worked with non-profit organizations. This is followed by a description of the drug-free zone, specifically how many inmates were assigned to the drug-free zone, what the primary substance of abuse was of inmates assigned to the drug-free zone, and how many were discharged. Further, the paper describes how many inmates were tested for addictive substances and for which addictive substances they were tested positive. The thesis concludes with the total number of inmates tested and tested positive.