

This thesis deals with the issue of social work in education - in institutions of secondary education in the Czech Republic, i.e. at the second level of primary schools and secondary schools. The position of the social worker, which is not firmly anchored within the school education system of the Czech Republic. This thesis is divided into two parts. the aim of the thesis is to contribute to the topic of the introduction of the social worker in schools in the Czech Republic. The aim of the research is then to identify the shape of the current situation through selected settings and to identify the possibilities of introducing the social worker in schools. As a topic for further research, I would recommend the development of a methodology for social work in schools in the Czech environment.