Course of the examination: Firstly, the author presented his topic, the aim and the significance of the research, he focused on the literature framework, method and findings. Both reviewers found the aim interesting, however, the selection of the two particular events (FIFA Men's/Women's World Cup in Qatar/Australia) might not be the most effective for exploring the differences in their media portrayal. Although the analysis of 60 articles was found rather descriptive, the author was then able to discuss the findings in final part of thesis and it was really appreciated. The opponent drew attention on the fact that the student did not provide any literature regarding women's sports and events. The student defended his choice of topic and was able to discuss other questions raised by committee, therefore his work was graded with C.
