

ABSTRACT

The diploma thesis deals with the teaching of primates in selected secondary schools. The work is divided into theoretical and practical parts. Its aim is to evaluate how the teaching of primates is implemented in secondary schools, as well as how teachers and students approach the subject, and based on their approach, to propose suitable activities for biology lessons. The attitudes of teachers and students towards the teaching will be investigated through a questionnaire survey conducted among both groups.