Attempt: regular

Course of the examination: The student described her thesis, talking about the research design, the main goals and the outline of the thesis. She talked about the fusion of different theories used in the work, such as radical democracy, marxism and liberation theology. The committee then presented the reviews of the thesis. The student responded to the comments of the opponent, noting that the critique of "effectiveness" of some movements is rather vague. The student at a request of the committee then elaborated on the concept of radical democracy. In the same way she also talked about liberation theology.
