

Abstract

This bachelor's thesis deals with the concept of truth, playing on the contrast between absolute and relative truth. This topic is significant at a time when disinformation and information wars play a key role in public debate. The work uses Jiří Tábořský's books "In the network of misinformation", Karel Řehka's "Information war" and Viktor Farkas' "Media war" as main materials. The goal is to analyze different views of the truth in the context of information conflicts and media manipulations, thereby contributing to a deeper understanding of these phenomena.
