

In the time of global changes of the world we are living in there is a lot of phenomena, that we can consider either the cause or the result of these changes. For example the global climate changes, political changes, as well as the changes within the religious relationships and other relate phenomena. The Czech theologian and sociologist Tomáš Halík is showing how important it is to talk about but no less to realize the dialogue between the religions and different religious traditions, dialogue within the Christianity, and even between Christianity and other world religions and traditions. Religion as an important part of everyday life of many people is also a phenomenon that is of a big importance within the concept of sustainable development, that makes efforts to preserve and develop the life in all its aspects.
