

Abstract

Title of the thesis:

Doping at the Olympic games

Aim of the thesis:

To elaborate the occurrence of doping at the Olympic games, to identify the misused doping substances, to evaluate in which sports doping occurs most frequently, to identify the participation of individual countries in the occurrence of doping at the Olympic games and to compare individual doping incidents and number of sportsmen who participated.

Methods:

The thesis has a theoretical character and it uses qualitative methods: compares, analyses and interprets texts and data acquired through background research. It draws independent conclusions from this data.

Results:

The thesis shows and explains the basic disposition of doping incidents at the Olympic games. It identifies the evolution of doping at the Olympic games from the historical point of view. It tries to define some common features of the occurrence of doping at the Olympic games.

Key words:

Olympic games – doping – doping incidents.