

The aim of my work is to present the issue of burn injuries of the elderly age. The work is split up into two main parts. The first part is a background research and introduction of burn injury on common and concrete level. Further on the work points more on a concrete case of a patient with burn injury.

The second part of my work includes very concrete extract from the medical documentation and also comprehensive nursing process according to a model of V. Henderson. The finish of the work is a look in to the future and education plan which recommends to the relatives of the patient how to prevent another burn injury.
