

A final bachelor's thesis with a title Palliative care for a patient with breast cancer and diabetic foot in a hospice is divided into three parts - theoretical, practical and nursing part. In theoretical part I follow, on the one hand, the proper illness - breast cancer; on the other palliative care and care in hospices.

The practical part is aimed at qualitative monitoring of a chosen client in hospice in a form of nursing casuistry. The monitoring is conducted by a method of nursing process.

The aim of this work was to describe and evaluate nursing care provided to a chosen client. I discovered that the provided hospice care was of a good quality, but with regard to an illness prognosis and client's desire for life the care was „untimely“.
