

The theme of this bachelor thesis is „A nursing case report of a female patient with the diagnosis of stroke.“ The thesis is divided into clinical and actual nursing-care parts.

The clinical part is subdivided into chapters, in which I first described the characteristics of the disease, basic identification of the patient, overview of patient history and other diagnoses. In the end I focused on the description of therapeutic care and a brief summary of the hospitalization.

In the nursing-care part, I described the nursing history, further on is the definition of the nursing diagnosis, the plans of nursing-care and their realization and evaluation.

The aim of this thesis was to describe the problematics of stroke and elaborate a nursing case report regarding the biological and psycho-social needs of the patient.
