

As a theme of my bachelor work I have chosen the Suicide. We all have some experience with this topic – we all are confronted from TV, society, our neighbour, family, ourselves. The problem of suicide is wellknown but still huge tabu. The ground of my work, except explaining basic terms, is to answer two questions. The first is: „Are there any common signs for people with suicidal tendencies?“. The second is: „What are the specificities in contact with these people?“ As I thought there are lot of common signs determining the risk of suicide. Some of them are – abusing drugs, loneliness, depression, personality signs. Lot of people have some of these. The risk grows with the cummulation of them. In chapter about specificities in contact with this people I specified myself on contact of social worker and client with these tendencies, because of my profession. But I think this contact is almost the same as contact with „normal“ people with suicidal tendencies. So principles can be usefull for anyone of us. In the 7. chapter I show an interview with a girl who wanted to die. She shows me a lot from her – her life, thinking, problems...In comment I´m trying to find the risk signs. The sense of my work is to show that people with suicidal tendencies aren´t „psychos“, but normal people in unnormal life situations doing desparate things.
