

Total hip replacement is elegant way how to cure defects and hip joint disorders of patient irresponsive to conservative way of treatment. Appearance of complication can endanger result of whole operation, and patient's life too.

This thesis describes some of postoperative complications, manifestations of these and offers current methods of prevention and solution, how to contend against these complications.