

Bachelor's thesis is focused on patients diagnosed with diabetes mellitus type LADA. In the clinical part of the work analyzes the problem of the disease of diabetes mellitus. The theme is fleshed out in terms of anatomical, physiological, pathophysiological, and there is also the definition, diagnosis and therapy of this disease. In conclusion, the clinical section describes the history and examination of patients. The nursing part of the model used by M. Gordon and developed short-and long-term care plan. It also describes the psychosocial problems of this disease, which is used for the stages of coping with illness from E. Kübler-Ross. As discussed in detail the issue of education