

Recently, the media increasingly report on cases of brutal bullying at one time or another. School shows brutal images from mobile phones, so offenders may seem to be bullying "Rapid achievement of today's time." However, most sources agree that the bullying is phenomenon as old as education itself. Mentions of bullying practices very similar. According to some sources even date back to the 17th century. But what seems alarming is the fact that the number of cases of bullying in recent years increases, decreases with age aggressors, sometimes even longer on the level of pre-school age increased sophistication of bullying. It turns out that bullying is a problem worldwide and very arduous. Most children with her. Unfortunately, in some form, and met many adults also have personal experience of their own school days. Bullying is not only far from big cities and children from disadvantaged social layers, definitely not just elementary schools, but on the contrary, a normal part of life the selection of students and schools. But what is most important of all, most authors are inclined to believe that the correct bullying prevention can minimize and provide the children feel safe and fair treatment in school and provide them with the healthy mental development. Phenomenon of our time seems to be the incidence of weapons among school students as an expression in inappropriate forms of aggression, therefore, this work deals with this topic even marginally. Lack literature on this topic, invites you to a deeper examination of the situation among Czech youth particularly urgent in the mirror seems to events in recent months not only abroad but also Czech Republic. The practical part of this thesis is to compare the incidence of bullying in small Slovak metropolis and Prague, the Czech capital. It also compares the ratios between students of elementary school students and 8-year schools. It maps the incidence and types of bullying, distribution of aggressors, victims and witnesses by gender or school attended. At the same time maps, whether students carry guns to school and if so, whether the school is sometimes used and under what conditions. The author is aware that this is a pilot study, students were studied sample relatively small, but it brought useful and troubling results for the author.
