

Premature rupture of membranes is still current obstetric tématem. Je cause about 30% of all premature births and has such a significant proportion of perinatal morbidity and mortality and thus on the future status generací. Je be calculated with at any stage of pregnancy.

I will not conceal that the choice of thesis topic is For me, more important than personal, because I myself was this condition during their intrauterine development ohrožena. Proto I chose this topic a little more carefully study and complete information on this topic accessible.