

The aim is to bring the specifics of the issue of addiction in apprentices treating real patients dependent, allowing more clearly show the peculiarities of development, depending on the specific subpopulation and points to the possibility of applying preventive measures in similar cases in the future.