

This work deals with adults with specific learning difficulties. In view of the fact that diagnosis is usually made in younger school age, for the difficulties reveal mostly during getting the knack of reading, writing and counting, a considerable part of this work deals only with the children with specific learning difficulties. The reason is the necessity to understand the manifestations and difficulties that originate from the specific learning difficulties and that have an influence on the adulthood.