

Abstract

This thesis is focused on the limitation of an ownership right to ground, especially to easements, as a one of the ways of the limitation of ownership rights to plots. The thesis describes the historical evolution of easements in the Czech republic, narrates and assesses the contemporary legal regulation, describes the future legal regulation of easements by The New Civil Codes and compares it with the contemporary legal regulation.