

Abstract:

Subject: Emergency planning within the Integrated Rescue System with focus on the activities of Police of the Czech Republic

Objective: unify and define the legislation relating to the emergency planning with a focus on the service performance of the Czech Police and implement subsequently relevant legal standards into the tactical exercises „The Island 2011“ in order to verify the practical set of principles, mechanisms with the possibilities of their evaluation based on real use.

Method applied: research, classification and study of available sources, consultation with the experts in the subject above, detailed analysis of the carried out exercises.

Outcome: Based on the study of legislative norms indicating the framework of activities of individual components of Integrated Rescue System, consulting the respective variants of implementation of practical knowledge, as a result, the exercise was designed in order to verify the ability of the police management to manage and control the forces and resources during the performance of the police tasks and also to verify the practical ability of police Officers to perform set tasks and cooperate in the place of intervention with units and relevant agencies.

Key words: Integrated Rescue System, crisis management, emergency planning, typical activity, Police of the Czech Republic