This Thesis „Levels of care for patients with Dementia in various medical facilities“ is about the care of patients with Alzheimer’s disease and Senile dementia. Aim of the Thesis is to find the differences between state and private institutes. Thesis deals with the issue of Alzheimer’s disease (AD) and Senile dementia (SD) and describes care in these institutions. It is focused on nursing staff care and friendly relationship with patients and an emphasis on creating a family environment, suitable communication and activation methods.

In the research part of Thesis attempts to map the specialised institutes of AD and SD in the Central Bohemian region. At the same time we find the method of interview and observation of care options for patients with AD and SD.

From research resulted better level of care in terms of relationship with patients and family environment, in the state institutions because of a greater number of nursing staff on the number of patients. Communication and family environment is not enough to create in the large institutes, rather focused on the mode of care.
